COWAN, who went through the Rockies by the Smoky river pass this season, reports that the north branch of the South fork of the Fraser heads in a big lake at the foot of an enormous glacier over 7,000 feet high, with a cave or tunnel reaching into it at least 100 yards. In August enormous icebergs were floating around in this lake.
The Free Press professes not to understand the BULLETIN's recent article on the failure of protection to protect the Edmonton farmer in the Kootenay trade and says "it is not quite clear whether it (the BULLETIN) thinks protection a fraud in any case or whether in this particular case the duty is not high enough." The BULLETIN did not happen to be arguing whether the rate of protection was too high or too low, a fraud or otherwise. It was merely establishing the fact that if there was any protection it was to the monopoly of the C. P. R. and not to the industry of the Edmonton farmer. Can the Free Press understand that point?

EDMONTON BULLETIN, OCTOBER 31st, 1895.

VOLUME XVIII.

With this issue the BULLETIN enters upon its sixteenth year, having commenced publication at Edmonton in the fall of 1880. At that time the C. P. R. was completed to Portage la Prairie and was heading for Edmonton, and prospects seemed bright for this place. The BULLETIN, like a good many of the settlers of that day was anxious to get ahead of the railway—and it did. Publishing a paper at a prospective railroad town with the railroad only 900 miles away, is one thing,—this was the position of the BULLETIN in 1880 and 1881,—and publishing in a town 200 miles off the main line with only the most remote prospect of ever getting the railway—which was the position from 1881 to 1891,—is quite another thing. To publish a paper in the most progressive district of the Territories, the centre and chief of all its attractions—which is the position of the BULLETIN now—is still another. This is the course through which the BULLETIN has run during its somewhat long newspaper life, and it is not too much to claim that in each condition it has adequately and creditably met the newspaper requirements of the town and district; and that to-day it is the leading local newspaper of the Territories, giving more news more nearly up to date than any other paper in the Northwest. Having continued under the one management throughout its career while most other Territorial papers have passed through numberless lightning changes of ownership and interest, its utterances have a weight that is not possessed by any of these papers. Having established a reputation for accuracy and freshness of news the BULLETIN items are largely quoted by Manitoba and Eastern papers and in this way the district is advertised more than by any other means. As a distinctively Edmonton enterprise, which has not only been able to record the making of the country but has been able to assist somewhat in the making, and is in a position to do as good work in the future as in the past, the BULLETIN asks the support of the Edmonton public, according to the enterprise which it displays and the value it is able to give for that support.

The region known throughout Canada and a great part of the United States and Great Britain as the Edmonton country, differs very materially in soil, climate, physical features and natural resources, and therefore in interests, from other parts of the Northwest. It has been the business of the BULLETIN since its first publication to bring those advantages of soil, climate and resources before the world, and to support the interests under all circumstances. That it has been creditably successful in its advocacy many critical occasions have proved. It is to the interest of the people that this part of the country should have a newspaper of sufficient standing and independence to state its case and fight its battles as can only be done by a first class and independent paper—one that is not controlled by any clique or party and that cannot be bought up to oppose the public interest. The BULLETIN claims to be such a paper and asks the support of all classes of citizens who wish to see the district kept prominently and favorably before the outside world and its interests defended against aggression from any quarter.

The BULLETIN is possessed of a newspaper plant and premises second to none in the Territories and is therefore enabled to meet any demands that may be made upon it in the publication of a first class newspaper. It is entirely printed in its own office and therefore every part of its columns is under the control of the proprietor. No money is sent away to pay for work that should be done at home. The BULLETIN has a larger circulation than any other paper in Northern Alberta and is therefore the best medium by which advertisers may reach their customers. As some of the mails leave Edmonton on Tuesday and others on Friday, while still others leave on both Tuesday and Friday, and as the BULLETIN is published on Monday and Thursday evenings, it will be seen that post offices on every mail route get the news right up to date through the BULLETIN as they cannot through any other paper, not printed on those days. As news is only news while it is new this is a point that subscribers and advertisers should bear in mind. The BULLETIN has a printing department second to none in the Territories, in which all kinds of commercial printing is done in city styles at city prices, and with city promptitude. As the BULLETIN does not print a large sheet,—believing that what can thus be saved in paper can better be expended in giving the excellent telegraphic service which has been its leading feature ever since it was started—and in order that its patrons may be at no disadvantage in the amount of reading matter placed at their disposal through their subscription to it, arrangements have been made whereby for the price of the BULLETIN, $2.00 a year in advance, the Toronto Weekly Globe, the leading newspaper of Canada, giving twelve large pages of reading matter weekly will be supplied with the BULLETIN. This arrangement gives subscribers to the BULLETIN all the advantages of a first class local newspaper and of a first class general newspaper as well. An enormous amount of splendid reading matter and the local news besides. This offer of course only applies to subscriptions paid in cash in advance, and gives better value for the money than is offered by any other paper in the west.

NORTHWEST AGENCY.

[REGINA LEADER REPORT.]

REGINA, Sept. 28th, '95.

AFTERNOON.

Mr. Haultain moved the second reading of the bill respecting legal profession. He explained that he wished to provide for a different system of examination of candidates for admission to the bar. The proposed changes prescribe an intermediate law examination to be passed about the middle of the three years term of service and must be passed at least a year before going up for the final examination. Other changes were proposed to be introduced respecting the discipline of advocates. The intention was to provide a safe, cheap and very summary way of dealing with professional men who did not act properly with regard to their clients.

The bill was read a second time.

RAILWAY ASSESSMENT.

Mr. Fearon, in moving the second reading of a bill to amend the railway assessment ordinance, said that the law as it now stands, was virtually a law for the exemption of railways from taxation. He provided, in his bill, not only for the assessment of the land, but of the roadbed and the superstructure. It also provided for the assessment of all property,—for any buildings and property whatsoever owned by the railway companies, going on the principle that all property is assessable and liable to taxation by the state.

The second reading was agreed to.

LIQUOR LICENSES AND SOCIAL CLUBS.

At 2.30 the house again sat, and immediately went into committee on the liquor license ordinance amending bill.

Mr. Maloney, the promoter of the bill, replying to Mr. Haultain, explained sub-section 8 of section 2 as being intended to protect license holders and to prevent the sale of liquor without license. Such provision had been asked for very extensively, since the present law permitted the starting of clubs which deal in liquor without being licensed. Should they stay with those whiskey dens and not make a sweeping bill, those dens would crawl through. The object of the bill was to make the law so fast that it would "stay," and he believed the judgment of the house would be that it should stay (laughter).

Mr. Reid objected to clubs being licensed as they were not selling to outside people. They were not run for profit but for convenience.

Mr. Haultain said no analogy could be drawn between hotels and private clubs. A hotel was for the purpose of supplying public requirements. Clubs were simply private concerns, each member contributing to the cost of the accommodation provided only for themselves. A club was essentially a private institution, and there was no more right to interfere with private clubs than to interfere with a private individual who might choose to have liquor in his own house. The legislation now proposed only affected two institutions in the Territories,—the Assiniboia club at Regina, and the ranchmen's club in Calgary. Did clubs exist purposely to evade the law he would do his best to put them down, but the present clubs did not.

Mr. Fearon replied that the machinery by which those two clubs were brought into existence was so simple that it would be easy to set in motion to get other clubs. He combatted the idea that clubs were not established for profit. He held that more was charged for liquor in clubs than elsewhere and the profit so made was allowed to accumulate for the purpose of gaining property.

Mr. Haultain: What about subscriptions?

Mr. Fearon retorted that there might be subscriptions, but everybody who had had the least to do with clubs knew very well that the subscriptions did not keep the clubs running. He strongly urged that clubs ought to be licensed, and claimed that they would be benefited thereby.

Mr. Haultain considered it would be a great hardship to compel men to get a license to use their own property. The clubs in question were simply a number of men joining together as a corporate body for their own convenience, and the public had no right to say what the club should do within its own walls. If the members of that private institution chose to put their hands into their pockets and pay a little extra for the general good of the club, that was their matter, and nobody outside the club had anything to do with it. He condemned the clause of the bill requiring clubs to have the same dining accommodation as is required in licensed hotels as being absurd and altogether unjust.

Mr. Oliver said that when the intent of the liquor ordinance was violated, it was proper for the house to take the fact into consideration. The house had passed an ordinance requiring a certain class of tradesmen to be licensed. Under that license those tradesmen were entitled to protection. The bill now before the committee sought to secure that protection as against bodies of gentlemen who established clubs to make profit out of the sale of liquors. If they did not protect these people who paid license money, then they had no longer a right to take that money. Not only had they a just right to protect men who paid license money, but if they failed to protect them then they had no right to complain if these men took steps to protect themselves.

Mr. Haultain asked the mover of the bill, what was the object with which he introduced the bill? What sort of clubs did he want to get at?

Mr. Maloney replied that the particular sort of clubs he was after were those mentioned by Mr. Haultain,—an aggregation of men combining together to sell whiskey and drink it.

Mr. Haultain: Was there any idea of simply touching the only two institutions in the country which are incorporated at the present time?

Mr. Maloney: I certainly had some idea of that.

Mr. Haultain: Was it not with regard to a certain local evil in his own locality,—the existence of certain so-called clubs which were evading the law; was it not to put them down that this legislation was almost purely introduced?

Mr. Maloney: Yes but not only in my own district, because there are two or three districts near us altogether in the same way, and in order to make the law so that these particular ones in my own part of the country will be ousted. At the same time if they stopped one sort and not the other, where were they going to be? If the bill passed at all, they wanted it in such a shape that there would not be any loop hole to crawl out of. Those men in my district would simply say they had joined together, but that they did not pay their $100 as had been done by the two clubs named. That was all the difference.

Mr. Haultain remarked that the hon. gentleman had discovered a new object now. The only body of men in the country which would be affected by the proposed legislation were the Assiniboia club and the Ranchmen's club. The very evil which was supposed to exist in the part of the country from which the hon. gentleman came, and to put down which the bill was introduced, was not mentioned.

Mr. Oliver said that in the face of the statement of the leader of the house that the bill did not deal with the subject for which it was intended, he would suggest that the question be put back.

Mr. Maloney, acting on the advice of the (Continued on third page.)

NORTHWEST ASSEMBLY.
hon. member for Macleod, asked that progress be reported and leave given for the committee to sit again on the bill.
This was agreed to.

RAILWAY ASSESSMENT.
The house then went into committee on the railway assessment bill.
Discussion arose on the third clause, which provided that the roadway and superstructure thereon should not be assessed at a greater value than $1,000 per mile.

Mr. Lineham suggested that the amount be raised to $5,000 per mile and vigorously stood by the suggestion, which seemed to stagger many of the members. To the objection that the railway companies would be more apt to contest it, if the amount were placed so high, Mr. Lineham replied that the companies would fight it out anyhow, no matter what amount might be named.

Mr. Fearon, while asking that the amount be allowed to remain as in the bill stated that so long as the principle was recognized on the present occasion he was not so particular as to the amount. That could be dealt with another time as circumstances might warrant.

Mr. Simpson gave figures showing that in his district, comprising five miles of railway and buildings upon which at present about $25 or $26 was paid, if the value be put at $5,000 per mile, the taxes, at the same amount per dollar as now, would be about $100 or $170. It was impossible to think the C. P. R. would submit to that.

Mr. Lineham remarked that if the house said it would have to be paid, it would have to be paid.

Mr. Insinger reminded the hon. members that the C. P. R. would not let them have all their own way, but would fight to the end, and where would the house get the money to fight with?

Mr. Bannerman replied that no matter how small the amount might be, the railway company would fight it out, and they might as well make a start.

The clause was agreed to without alteration and progress was reported.

Mr. Maloney's liquor bill again came on, the hon. member introducing an amendment to the clause referring to the class of persons who should not be allowed to sell liquor.

Mr. Haultain proposed an amendment that "any sale or other disposal of liquor by any association, body of persons or club not incorporated at this date by a special ordinance of the Territories," should be a violation of the ordinance. The amendment, said Mr. Haultain, would deal with the evil which the hon. member for St. Albert (Mr. Maloney) proposed to deal with, whereas his own (Mr. Maloney's) included, as was said in the afternoon, two clubs which had secured vested rights. The amendment proposed by Mr. Maloney was simply a bit of private legislation of the very worst sort.

Mr. Maloney retorted that the only trouble was that the hon. member for Macleod saw that the bill struck something that he did not want struck. ("Hear, hear," by Mr. Haultain.)

Mr. Oliver thought there was a necessity for such amendments to their legislation as would protect the vested rights they had created under the liquor ordinance. Any such legislation would have its support on general principles, not on temperance principles. But the two clubs referred to had vested rights acquired under the legislation of the assembly. That being so they were entitled to protection. At the time they were granted their charters, it was thoroughly understood that the sale of liquor would be carried on and on the strength of that, large sums were invested in those institutions. He proposed to vote for the amendment of the member for Macleod if that amendment would be effective against unorganized clubs. If, however, it should be found that under the provision which allowed the existence of those clubs and allowed them to sell liquor, if that formed a loop hole through which other institutions could crawl he would be very glad to extend the general operations of the law to those institutions, and even to sweep away their vested rights.

Mr. Ross said he was a member of the house at the time the bills passed incorporating the Assiniboia and Kanchmen's clubs. He did not now believe in the incorporation, nor did he believe in it at the time. He did not believe those clubs were serving any good end; still he could not forget the fact that that house by incorporating them, gave them certain vested rights and allowed them certain privileges, and that they had acquired certain properties. If in the giving of a vote he could feel it would not do any injury to the people who had been given those vested rights, he would be willing to vote for the proposal to do away with all clubs in the Territories, but as they, as an assembly, had given them certain privileges, the house must consider the position in which it had placed them. If they found that in the keeping of these clubs the general licensing act was affected, if other clubs which were not incorporated could go on and sell liquor in utter disregard of the house act, then sweep all clubs out of existence. But if on the other hand, the amendment of Mr. Haultain would meet the case and preserve to those two clubs their vested rights then the amendment would receive his support.

Mr. Fearon remarked that judging from the language of the preceding speakers one would infer that the bill was a means to an end for sweeping all ready existing clubs out of existence. As the bill only read that those clubs should pay a license, it did not necessarily follow that the license would sweep them out of existence. It was reasonable to suppose that carrying the expense they had carried, that they could carry that as well and it would be no great hardship. He would be willing to support any measure that would allow those two clubs to retain their privilege if by doing so it would cover the ground required. But the amendment of the hon. member for Macleod did not cover the ground, as the same power which brought them into existence could bring others into existence. He held that if such a state of affairs existed as described by Mr. Maloney, that a number of men were conducting a club and illegally selling whiskey, if they had sufficient influence to evade the law, they would have sufficient influence to send a bill of incorporation down to the house and have it passed.

Mr. Critchley thought the two clubs named should be exempted owing to their vested rights. He thought it would be well if the names of those clubs could be inserted in the amendment.

Mr. Oliver asked if the hon. member for Macleod would agree to allow the amendment to name those two places.

Mr. Haultain replied that he had no objection, and altered his amendment accordingly.

Being submitted to the vote there were 6 in favor and 7 against, and the amendment was declared lost.

Mr. Maloney's amendment was then carried. It read: "Section 82 of the said ordinance is hereby amended by adding thereto the words and any sale or other disposal of liquor by a body of persons whether incorporated or not" shall be an infraction of the ordinance. The provision relating to dining accommodation was dropped.

The bill as amended was reported.

Mr. Maloney moved that the amendments be read a first time.

Mr. Haultain moved and Mr. Ross seconded "That the amendments be not read a first time, and that the bill be referred back to the committee of the whole house with instructions to strike out section 3 of the bill and substitute therefore the following section:—Section 82 of the said Ordinance is hereby amended by adding hereto the words "and any sale or other disposal of liquor by any association, body of persons, or club not incorporated at this date by a special ordinance of the Territories or by the servant or agent thereof to the members thereof or to any other person without such license shall be a violation of Section 91 of this Ordinance."

Upon this there was the vote of 7 each.

The speaker declared the amendment agreed to, he giving his casting vote in its favor. The bill was thereupon referred back to the committee of the whole.

The amendment as sent back was again rejected by 7 to 6, and declared lost.

Mr. Maloney moved that the bill be reported.

Mr. Haultain asked for ruling. The house, he said, had instructed the committee to make a certain amendment. The duty of the committee was to make the amendment. They had come to a mere farce. If the committee of the house did not obey the instructions of the house it simply meant going backwards and forwards. If the hon. gentleman wishes to go backward and forward he (Mr. Haultain) was willing to go backwards and forwards all the year.

Mr. Maloney: I want to go straight ahead. (Laughter.)

The chairman of the committee, (Mr. Page) after consulting authorities, said the committee had power to refuse the amendment. He was proceeding to put the motion when

Mr. Haultain pointed out that that procedure could go on for a certain time until somebody got tired. The bill was simply in the committee stage. The hon. gentleman had to move the reading of the amendment twice and the bill a third time and the passing of the bill—in all the bill had to be moved four times. Unless the house consented to sit for three days the bill could not be passed unless by the unanimous consent of the house, and the hon. gentleman certainly could not get it. In the interest of vested rights he (Mr. Haultain) would take every parliamentary advantage against it.

The bill was reported to the house with amendments.

Mr. Haultain moved his amendment that it be referred back to committee. The result was just as before, the speaker again voting for it.

In committee of the whole house the amendment was again lost by seven votes to six, the result drawing from Mr. Bannerman the remark: "We're not tired yet."

Mr. Maloney moved that the committee rise and report the bill with amendments.

This was done, and

Mr. Haultain for a third time moved that it be referred back, at the same time remarking that that was the last time he would move the amendment. After that he would resort to the ordinary privilege of simply blocking the hon. member's bill, and he could make up his mind whether he would accept the amendment or not have the bill passed this session.

Seven votes were again cast on each side, and the speaker declared the amendment carried.

Once more and for the last time the house found itself in committee of the whole upon this vexed question. Upon the vote being taken the voting was seven for and seven against. The change was caused by Mr. Speaker exercising his right to vote in committee which he had not hitherto done. Mr. Page (chairman of committee) cast in favor of the amendment and declared it carried.

Mr. Maloney moved that the committee rise and report the bill as amended.

This was done, and the third reading of the bill fixed for Monday morning.

[The above extraordinary see-saw came about in this way: There were fourteen members and Mr. Speaker present. In committee Mr. Speaker may speak and vote, but seldom does. In committee Mr. Page was chairman, and Mr. Maloney's amendment was carried by the following poll:

FOR—	AGAINST—
Maloney,	Meyers,
Bannerman,	Lineham,
Mowat,	Oliver,
Knowling,	Insinger,
Simpson,	Ross,
Clinksill,	Haultain—6.
Fearon—7.

The committee rose accordingly, Mr. Page, chairman of committee, took his seat, and Mr. Speaker took the chair. Mr. Haultain moved the house back into committee which motion carried as follows:

FOR—	AGAINST—
Meyers,	Maloney,
Lineham,	Bannerman,
Oliver,	Mowat,
Insinger,	Knowling,
Ross,	Simpson,
Haultain,	Clinksill,

the speaker casting his vote in favor. Accordingly the house resolved again into committee. Mr. Speaker vacated, and Mr. Page became chairman. When finally the speaker voted in committee, the vote was made a tie, and the chairman cast against Mr. Maloney's motion.]

SCHOOL TRUSTEES ELECTION BY BALLOT.

Mr. Haultain stated that he was requested before the school bill was introduced to try and provide a system of voting by ballot at ordinary school elections for trustees and other purposes. He found it very difficult at the time and did not attempt it, or rather he dropped it. Since then he had received more light on the subject and he thought he saw his way to introduce a simple clause or two which would provide machinery for voting by ballot in school districts on the request of a certain number of ratepayers. Before proceeding further he wished to get the sense of the committee on the subject.

The committee approved the suggestion and Mr. Haultain promised to introduce legislation.

The House adjourned at 11.30 p. m.

Monday, Sept. 30th.

The speaker took the chair at 10.30.

There were nineteen members present.

On the orders of the day being come to, Mr. Fearon moved that the bill to amend the Liquor License Ordinance be referred back to committee of the whole house on the following definition: "Householder" shall mean the owner or occupant being a tenant under a yearly lease of any dwelling house or place of business." The amendment was agreed to.

THE SCHOOL ORDINANCE.

In accordance with his promise of Saturday, Mr. Haultain proposed clauses to be inserted in the school bill to the effect that trustees in villages shall be proceeded with at the written request of not less than ten ratepayers.

The clauses were approved.

The remaining bills were passed and the house adjourned at 12.30.

TOWN COUNCIL.
Wednesday, Oct. 30th.
At the council meeting last night councilors Strang, Kelly, Cameron and Picard were present. Councillor Strang was elected acting mayor.
The fire inspector was ordered to pull down certain tin chimneys after ten days' notice to the owners. The electric light company was granted the use of the council chamber for their annual meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 13th. The health and relief report and finance report were adopted. It was decided to inform the North Pacific Flour Mill Co. that their proposed mill was too large for present requirements. The subscription of $1,000 promised by the council to the new hospital was ordered to be paid. By-law No. 108 was read three times. The communication of J. McAllister asking that town weigh scales be established, was referred to the market committee. K. W. McKenzie was added to the collector's roll for $200 income. It was decided to advertise the debentures now under issue.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN.
The prairie and bush fires in the surrounding settlement have been keeping the settlers and some mounted police busy for some time past. During the past week several parties of police were out in the Beaver Hills and Deep Creek settlements, a number of times; and had it not been for the fire so cheerfully done by them in assisting the settlers, whose property was in danger, far more damage would have been done. Owing to the high winds for some time past and the grass and dead timber being like tinder, it is a difficult thing to keep control of the fires, hence fencing, stables and stacks of hay are being burned up and other damage done. To show how a fire will travel, it can be mentioned that last Sunday, the 20th instant, it jumped the river (about five miles below here) a distance of about 1,000 feet.

Since writing the foregoing, it is learned that Mr. Frost Simmons, living in the Beaver Hills, lost his dwelling, all his grain, fencing, etc., late on Friday night. It is also rumored that all the hay in the vicinity of Island lake, 15 miles east of here, was destroyed at the same time.

VALUE OF AN EXPORT STEER.
Commercial.
A choice export steer will bring 3 cents per pound, live weight, at the Winnipeg stockyards, yet the farmers are selling many of their fat cattle, so the Commercial is informed, at about 2 cents per pound, and some are not bringing more than 1 cent per pound. The reason of this is that they are not the right class of animals, and can be sold only to local butchers, being too small and generally unsuited for export. It costs as much to export a small animal as a large one, hence the small ones are avoided. Besides, they are not suitable for the British markets. It is likewise costs just about as much to raise a scrub animal which will sell at 2 cents per pound as it does to raise a good animal which will sell at 3 cents per pound. Why then will farmers bother with the scrubs? By raising a good animal they are always sure of a ready sale at a good price, while the scrubs are often very difficult to dispose of at all. The latter can only be sold to local butchers, while a good animal is suitable for either the home or foreign markets. Farmers in the Winnipeg district who raise cattle fit for export, have this season been taking their animals to the Winnipeg stock yards and getting prices varying from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents per pound, live weight, according to the quality of the animal and the position of the market at the time. Cattle only saleable to local butchers have not touched over 2 1/2 cents for some time, and would hardly bring this price now for anything. This is surely a strong reason why farmers should cease raising scrub animals. Viewed from the commercial standpoint there is certainly nothing to recommend the raising of scrub animals, and agricultural authorities also tell us that there is no advantage in them from a purely agricultural point of view. Why then raise them?

There was eleven degrees of frost in London, England, on Oct. 24th, and snow fell in Lancashire.

The project for a fast Atlantic steamship service between Canada and England has fallen through and the government's offer of $750,000 a year bonus has been withdrawn.

Speaking of the navigation of Hudson's bay the Free Press has the following: "To say that the waters proved navigable before the advent of railways and that supplies were brought from Liverpool by way of the bay for the Hudson's Bay company, while the fur trade followed the same route, has absolutely no bearing on the present railway enterprise. That a limited quantity of supplies for the isolated forts of a trading company could be brought across the waters of the bay and straits, is not proof that the traffic of an immense volume of yearly exports would be practicable over the same route." The Free Press will not accept actual trade carried on every year for over 200 years as a proof of practicability but will accept the results of the explorations and experiences of a single season by a government expedition—sent out to prove that the navigation is not practicable.

They appeared intelligent settlers, and their teams were good animals.
